

ADOPTION NATION, by award-winning journalist and adoptive father Adam Pertman, explodes the corrosive myths surrounding this vital component of our society and explores its fascinating realities as no book ever has before. Filled with compelling personal stories, Adoption Nation is essential reading for anyone thinking of adopting a child, for every member of the adoption “triad,” and for all the professionals and policy-makers who affect the institution and everyone within it. Pertman’s compassionate, powerful book is also the first to address this important subject to a general audience, beyond the 80-million-plus Americans with adoption in their immediate families. Indeed, Adoption Nation not only explains how this burgeoning process is profoundly altering our culture, but also shows how it touches all our lives.

ADAM PERTMAN is executive director of the Evan B. Donaldson Adoption Institute, the pre-eminent policy and education organization in its field. Pertman, one of the foremost experts on adoption issues in our country, lectures internationally and has appeared in media including “Oprah,” “Today” and “The New York Times.” He was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize for his writing about adoption in The Boston Globe, where he was a journalist for two decades. He and his wife, Judy Baumwoll, live in Massachusetts with their two children, Zachary and Emilia.
